This lovely park is near Leicester Square the heart of London's West End.

This is the entertainment centre of London, and it's also where you can buy tickets for London's theatres. Everywhere you look there are lots of kiosks and booths selling these tickets.

They often sell discounted tickets. These are usually high price tickets that people return on the day of the show because they can't go and see it.

There are five big cinemas in Leicester Square, including two IMAX cinemas showing films in 3D.

It's a good place to see the premiere of big films. The actors often come here for the first screening, and there are always plenty of fans outside. The 39 steps is a comedy based on a Hitchcock film.

Cinemas and theatres are cheaper if you go to the matinee at 3:00 or 4:00 in the afternoon.
